Product description

This painting was created in the late afternoon and captures a landscape in transition. As daylight fades, nature subtly shifts its palette: the once vivid, intense colors of the coastline soften into delicate pastels. Shades of pink and violet come to the fore. This atmospheric effect is further enhanced by the agapanthus and other wild flowers in the foreground, whose hues intensify the sense of depth and mood. In the middle distance, Pointe d'Isnain is visible, while in the far background lies Harbour Island, marked by its small, enchanting lighthouse
