Product description

Harbor Island, an ever-changing visual spectacle. I see this place almost every day, from my window, coming back from my gallery. I love this place. This time, heavy steel clouds appeared. The color of the sea was turquoise. I feel disturbed. But... I paint... it's the most important... to capture this atmosphere.

This small rocky islet is located 1.8 km from the shore of Saint-Quay-Portrieux, opposite the tip of the semaphore. There is a small white and red house, which is actually a lighthouse. The lighthouse was guarded until 1891, it is now automated.
